HOLEY MOLEY BUILDERS -

Around this time last year I was working with some teams of "Storm Chasers", (kind of like the movie Twister) because in an attempt to conquer fears I wanted to actually stalk a monster tornado like they do. One day I supposed to go out with them but one of the vans had a flat and we were late so I missed out that day.

That day they went to the now-famous city of Joplin, Missouri and barely survived the encounter with the one of the most devastating tornadoes in American history. Later I did get up close to a few tornadoes but nothing like that OPLIN one and now with the chance to go again this season I'm debating between going chasing again or learning to wrestle crocodiles...

I'm a big Puss'n'Boots on the inside so I try to push myself into stuff I'm terrified of - haven't decided which one yet so would love to know what you think.

Here's what in this Injection:

- ===> How a small bakery made four times as much mo-ney - it's a simple lesson that anybody can use in your neighborhood to start buying up companies...
- ===> The (gay?) "war architect" whose ideas slaughtered and enslaved countless people - this is why you should build your Empire Skill: it transfers to everything...
- ===> The secret type of dialog that changed Europe forever, this is the same secret to gaining compliance like a Terminator and having people GIVE you anything you want

And more... like a Cabbage Patch lesson, how to steal a house - literally...

As always you can create a FREE account here: www.WeBuildEmpires.org. You can also check here to see when applications for Builders are being accepted here: www.WeBuildEmpires.com.

Love to hear how you're using the Injections/Episodes to change the world - Thanks for everything!

Napoleon Bonaparte is considered one of the greatest military minds ever. Few battles illustrate this brilliance more than the Battle of Austerlitz (the Battle of the Three Emperors). Napoleon's French army was surrounded and outnumbered by about 2:1, the Russian and Austrian armies formed an alliance, they had higher ground, were about to attack and the French only had about 150 guns total.

This seemed unwinnable and Napoleon was begged to retreat.

He went into isolation for a few days to think. When he was done he began acting extremely bizarre - randomly moving his troops in offensive/defensive formations, leaving dangerous and obvious vulnerabilities, abandoning key and favorable positions.

Then he went to meet with the Czar (a rival commander)

Instead the Czar sent a representative. The report back was that Napoleon was fearful, eager to appease and overall doubtful and nervous. This was all the armies needed to hear.

They attacked full force - surrounding Napoleon - to crush him

Even though they had higher ground they left it in haste and marched circularly to envelop and make an example of Napoleon. But as they marched to destroy Napoleon the unthinkable happened; they were somehow invaded. Napoleon used mountainside fog to hide his small army and as the armies left their town he ordered an uphill assault that would only work if his enemies were ignorant enough to leave their high point.

They were. And they did. Napoleon was able to split the armies.

Pushing them apart, their forces were split when they countered and he defeated the armies much easier and in humiliating fashion, even forcing masses to retreat and die in frozen waters.

What about the catalyst to all of it - the act of confusion, fear and the non-threatening meeting dialog that started the "assault"?

All an act to motivate his enemies' to react rashly. I always underline the importance of being non-threatening and of inviting strikes you are most prepared for instead of trying to avoid strikes altogether. This is a great example of both. Whether you want a better price, insider secrets from a company - or just about any "secret" - being non-threatening makes people behave in ways they would never think of in any other situation. It is a skill, and it boosts compliance.

We have itemized and Policized countless ways to do exactly that and get unbelievable compliance in every interaction you ever have. Apply to become a Builder... or hope you don't turn out like the Russians.

Bakery Quadruples Sales in Two Days for FREE - And How Anybody Can Do This...

This comes to us from Lisa Penrick, she worked with a local baking shop and applied a brilliant lesson involving a newspaper and pulling money out of thin air:

“I watched it like 1000 times and contacted a few of the notices from my paper to see if they wanted the Ultimate Cake for their party. These are huge sales and we got backed up on orders the first day!...”

By purposely picking high-margin-ideal-Transactions they made a killing and in one day made more than the company has ever made in one week. This is a powerful concept and others have used the same idea to go from zero to $50k+/month in a matter of hours.

Lisa did that after going through Injection/Episode HERE.

But that’s just the tip of the iceberg - apply to become a Builder because you’ll get to see just how deep the madness goes: www.WeBuildEmpires.com.

Lessons of brilliance are around us all the time.

Aside from the bizarre social experiments we sponsor/conduct I have a fascination with UFOs, mind control, the supernatural, time travel, and other unexplained crazy sh**... I'll make sure we start putting some of that here with the history stuff... and more stories of gratitude too.

Gay Military Genius?... A lesson in Skill Transfer "How you do anything is how you do everything."

Over 500 years ago a child was born out of wedlock. Not much is known of his childhood but as a teen he began to find his passion through an apprenticeship.

This skill changed his life, and he learned to apply the same skill and passion with any other project that he was a part of...brilliance always.

He was once arrested with a group of men and a male prostitute for sodomy.

One of the men was related to a powerful politician, which may be the reason charges were dropped.

He never had kids or married.

He was also a vegetarian and often bought caged birds only to release them (YES!). He was also known for "outstanding physical beauty".

He was even a pacifist.

So it may seem strange then that he was so interested in military combat, but he was obsessed.

He had designs for massive crossbows, self-propelled tanks, machine guns, helicopters, mortars, steam powered cannons...

He was centuries ahead of his time

Several of his ideas were used over 400 years later in both the World Wars. Countless men died because of his brilliantly effective inventions. He once said:

"Whatever the situation, I can invent an infinite variety of machines for both attack and defense."

As his legend grew he was hand picked by many warlords and notorious dictator-types as -

The Military Engineer

He was an "architect of warfare" but... his obsession started with design, specifically... drawing.

He was so emotionally invested in developing this skill that applying it to anything else - math, science, mapmaking, engineering, solar/water power, etc. - became easy.

He embodies the mantra that we use on our Team: "How you do anything is how you do everything."

His brilliance was not confined to military. In fact his drawings - not his military record - is what he is known for today. Drawings like...

The Mona Lisa.

The brutal military designer who teaches us how well skill transfers was... Leonardo da Vinci.

Couple spent $1M on Cabbage Patch Kids

Pat and Joe Prosey have spent over a million dollars on their 5,000 doll collection of Cabbage Patch Kids.

Lesson: In any and all marketing you should be trying to find "The Crazy's" like this, they are always there in any industry. Just one of them can Hectuple your business. I'm definitely a Crazy with baby parrots for example... and have more than Hectupled dozens of companies just by being their client. Find the Crazy's.

Do you sit instead of stand at your computer? You're twice as likely to die from heart disease!

Several studies over decades have concluded that Americans are (fatally) fat as fu**. As more sitting or sedentary jobs are the norm instead of active jobs, obesity has doubled, medical problems have surged, vision problems have risen and... people are dying a lot faster and fatter.

Lesson: This is why it's so easy to do our Fight Clubs for over $25,000... we are saving lives. I've become a strong supporter of sweating and eating healthier, I could keep going but don't have room here. Don't ignore your health guys.

WBE Answer:

The luxury served over 100 years ago in the U.S. Senate was bottled water from the oldest producer: Mountain Valley Spring Water.

They're brilliant, in the 20s they started funding clinical research to prove the medical benefits of their water. It legalized their claims and proactive dealt with competition, as a result...
